Dear Jack:

I wanted to drop you (and your people) a belated note of thanks for your firm's performance on the above project.

As we complete each of our projects, along with evaluating our own performance, I'm always interested in knowing (from the inside) how our team of Subcontractors and Vendors performed as well. Some time ago, I polled our PM/Superintendent team for general ratings, as well as the firm they considered as the best Subcontractor on the project, all criteria considered. You should be proud to know that both considered CSE at the number one firm. I hope you will pass on our gratitude to your people for a job well done.

Aside from competitive pricing, timely performance, quality work and responding to the typical challenges presented by a church project, I wanted to also thank you for your personal attention to various matters along the way. Not only did I appreciate your local market insight during the bid process and pre-construction periods, I thank you for the forthright and honest manner in which you handled your business. Its always pleasing when upon the completion of a project, we can look back and know we've not only worked together, but have also made new friends. I trust the experience was equally satisfying for you and CSE.

I hope our firms have the opportunity to work together again soon. Let's make that a goal!

Very truly yours,
